Anna Hawn, Cedar Grove, Mo., writes: "We think Foley Cathartic Tablets are the best liver pill we ever got hold of, as they do not nauseate or grip, but act freely on the liver. Any one in need of a liver pill, if he once tries them, would not be without them." Recommended for indigestion, constipation, bloating, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, bad breath, or other condition caused by clogged or irregular bowels. Stomach persons like the light, easy, pleasant feeling they give. C. C. BINGHAM.

Death of Mrs. Harriet C. McDonald—Personal and Local Matters.

Mrs. Harriet C. McDonald died at Portsmouth, N. H., Tuesday, April 25, aged 78 years. Harriet (Neal) McDonald was born at Lynn, Mass., in 1838. She was married to Abel MacDonald in 1858, and after her marriage lived in Boston, where he was employed on the police force. Four children were born to them, Fred, who died in 1897, Emma, (Mrs. Frank Granger) died in 1885, George of Portsmouth, N. H., and William of Memphis, Tenn. In 1877 the family came to Peacham to live on the old place and care for Mr. MacDonald's aged parents. They moved from here to Barnet then to West Barnet and last to Passumpsic, where Mr. MacDonald's death occurred. Since then Mrs. MacDonald has made her home with her son, George, and family, at Portsmouth. The first day of January she was taken ill with grip, other complications set in and a long, painful sickness of 17 weeks ensued. Besides her two sons, George and William, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. Emma Mansfield of Cliftondale, Mass., and Mrs. Evelyn Ash of Baltimore, Md. She also leaves nine grandchildren, four of whom are children of Fred MacDonald, Harriet (Mrs. C. W. Holmes) of Hope Valley, R. I., Mabel (Mrs. Francis Dechune), Estelle and William of Arlington. Five sons of George MacDonald, Arthur of Boston, Ralph, Lyman Roy and Earle of Portsmouth; a granddaughter, Mary Granger, died at the age of 18 years. She also leaves one great grand child, she was a member of Union Rebekah Lodge and the W. R. C. of Portsmouth and of the M. E. church at Peacham. The remains reached here on Friday morning accompanied by her son, George. A short service was held at the grave by Rev. Roy Green, at 10 o'clock. The flowers very beautiful. Quite a large number of friends, old neighbors and members of the W. R. C. and G. A. R., attended the service and burial. A letter was received last week by Mrs. M. S. Hunt from Mrs. Ellen (Lee) Stearns of Denver, Colo., telling of the death of her brother, William Lee in Denver of appendicitis. He formerly attended school at Peacham Academy and will be remembered by many. He was for some time mayor of Denver, Col.

PLANTS HAVE CRITICAL STAGES EARLY IN LIFE

Need Available Food Then to Mature High Quality Product.

There are certain stages during the growth of crops which may be called critical periods. Adverse conditions at such times seriously injure the plants, cut down yields and impair the quality of the product. For the small grains the time from a few days before the flowers open until the kernels are fully filled and begin to solidify is the critical period. The tiny grain kernels have just been started at this period and require careful nourishing with proper plant food if they are to mature into first class grain.

The critical period for corn occurs at the time when the pollen begins to drop upon the silks. For potatoes the tubers first begin to set until they are fully grown is the critical period. Few potatoes are well started, and inferior quality results when there is a short age of plant food to nourish them. If a proper variety has been chosen and if good seed is planted after the ground has been well prepared, the quality and quantity of the crop will depend upon the supply of plant food and the weather conditions which prevail.

DEAN VIVIAN EXPLAINS HOW TO BUILD UP SOIL.

Dairying, Mixed Farming and Gardening Require Fertilizer.

"There is no style of farming which we can hope to carry on indefinitely without the use of some kind of fertilizer."

"In dairy farming, when a large quantity of concentrates are purchased, it seems possible to return all the plant food removed from the soil through the manure. But in so doing we overstock the soil with nitrogen and need acid phosphate to balance it to get best results in grain production."

"In mixed farming, where about half of the grain is sold and the other half of the grain, with the hay and fodder, is fed on the farm, it might be possible to maintain a fair yield by the purchase of acid phosphate alone, but the highest returns from the farm demand the use of a complete fertilizer on the wheat at least."

"Any type of farming or gardening where the entire product is sold off the farm demands a liberal use of commercial fertilizer."

Dean Alfred Vivian of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University, brought out the above points in a lecture to the institute speakers of Ohio recently. He explained that he was not advocating any new doctrines, but that his statements were old truths dressed up in new clothes.

WITHOUT WHICH THERE IS NOTHING DOING.

Plants Must Feed, Just as Animals Feed, to Grow.

A rich soil is the first essential to good farming. Too often we forget that and try to skip along, hoping to make crops grow without any plant food to do it on. If plants are to grow they must feed, just as animals feed. If we could only see the plant particles in the roots among the soil particles we would better understand the crying need of soil fertility and we would be more prompt always to have it supplied.

Now is the time to plan for making the soil of every field a rich soil. Animal manures carefully conserved, commercial fertilizers rationally and liberally applied and green manures plowed under in a proper environment, each or all, will turn the trick. But plant food you must get.

As the lawyers would say, it is the sine qua non—without which nothing doing—of good farming.—Glenn G. Hayes, Editor American Farming.

FACTS ON FERTILITY.

Basis of All Agriculture Is Proper Use of Plant Food.

The basis of all agriculture is fertility, and the experience of farmers in general in the New England, eastern, southern and middle western states proves that the judicious use of commercial fertilizers is the key to rational, businesslike, profitable farming.

The gigantic feats in producing food from the soil accomplished by the emperors of the East and Europe become possible solely because they have appreciated and understood the value and use of available plant food. History confirms the statement that available plant food along with proper soil tillage is fundamental and brings the largest farm profits.—Professor Henry G. Bell, Agronomist, Soil Improvement Committee of National Fertilizer Association, in "Facts on Fertility."

When Land Needs Drainage.

When drainage is needed (1) air cannot enter the soil to help make the inert plant food available, (2) friendly bacteria cannot work, (3) plant roots will not penetrate into the stagnant soil and (4) planting and cultivating are delayed and hindered. The soil is water sealed when it should be open and active. Wet land is hopeless. Drainage is the solution.

BUSINESS IN VERMONT

Bradstreet's Burlington office reports in summarizing trade conditions for the month just closed that while war orders are still a large factor among the various manufacturing lines, there has been apparent a more active demand from domestic sources. Practically all lines of manufacture report a large volume of business ahead at present except the granite monumental and building manufacturers. Conservative men in this line, particularly among the monumental lines, are optimistic regarding the near future in this business, and state it as their belief that ere another six months period is passed, a resumption along nearly normal lines will be witnessed. Among the quarry owners, shipments of rough stock compare reasonably well with the period of a year ago.

Four separate lines of manufacture have been affected during the month by labor troubles, in three instances only in a small way. The slate quarry owners in the state are affected more seriously than other lines, but an early adjustment is anticipated.

The knitting needle plant has adjusted their labor affairs, and the work is going forward as formerly. Prospects favor but little further trouble from other points involved during the early part of the week.

The failure reports for the month include two of the largest ones that has been experienced in the state for several years, and these account for the large amount involved, total liabilities of the six mercantile failures during the month of April were approximately $323,123, with aggregate assets of $118,400. The same month of a year ago was free from mercantile failures.
